Applicants Are No Longer Needed for Oil Spill Cleanup Jobs in Mobile County

MONTGOMERY – Due to the overwhelming number of applicants responding to a call for oil spill cleanup jobs, the Alabama Career Center System announced today that there is no longer any need for individuals to continue coming to the Mobile career centers to sign up for these possible positions.

More than 2,000 individuals have come in and submitted their applications for consideration to BP and its employment contractor, P2S, should the oil come ashore in Alabama.

BP and P2S are seeking 500 workers each from Mobile and Baldwin counties to help cleanup the beaches should the need arise.

The career centers in Baldwin County will continue to accept applications from Baldwin County residents for the next few days.

People who have already applied for these potential jobs in both Mobile and Baldwin counties will be contacted by P2S if their services are needed. The company is in the process of beginning to conduct drug screens, background checks, training and identification badging which are mandatory before being hired for these positions.
